Training Requirements for new and current employees

All Actively Employed Individuals are required as a condition of that individual's employment with the USG to complete the following training as part of orientation and ongoing within the established timeframes as required. It is strongly encouraged that all required training be completed before the employee reports to their assigned unit. All such training must be completed no later than 30 days from the employee's hire date.

USG Required Training

Right to Know Training

As an employee of the State of Georgia, we are required to ensure you know about hazardous chemicals in the workplace. This right is guaranteed under Georgia's "Public Employee Hazardous Chemical Protection and Right to Know Act of 1988" (O.C.G.A. 45-22-2). This training will typically be coordinated through the Institution's Office of Human Resources.

USG Cybersecurity Awareness Training Requirements

Cybersecurity Awareness training will provide information on how to identify and report cyber threats to protect the integrity of the organization. In addition to completing the initial cybersecurity awareness training at orientation, all USG employees are also required to complete the cybersecurity awareness training at a minimum of twice annually. This training will typically be coordinated through the Institution's Office of Human Resources or Cybersecurity Department. Employees who do not complete the required cybersecurity awareness training may be subject to disciplinary action up to and including termination. See also BOR on Cybersecurity (10.4.2).

EMPLOYMENT: GENERAL CRITERIA FOR EMPLOYMENT

USG Ethics Training and Certification Requirements

Ethics Training and Certification will typically be coordinated through the Institution's Office of Human Resources, or the appropriate Department as designated by the institution.

Additionally, the USG may require periodic "refresher" ethics training and related certification courses. If any employee refuses to complete any required Ethics training and certification, the Institution shall follow the process as outlined below:

Employees

In the event an Actively Employed Individual fails to complete USG Ethics training and certification or other required training, the employee shall be subject to disciplinary action consistent with BOR Policy up to and including termination of employment. Upon the employee's initial failure to complete the training in accordance with the published deadline, the Institution shall have 30 days to obtain the employee's compliance with the required training and certification using disciplinary procedures consistent with Institutional policies and procedures and BOR Policy up to and including termination of employment. If the employee does not remediate the requirement within 30 days, then the disciplinary process outlined as follows shall be implemented. Nothing in the following process shall be construed as preventing the Institution from taking measures that it deems necessary to obtain compliance prior to the end of the 30-day period. Upon an employee's failure to complete the required training and certification, the employee's immediate supervisor of the employee shall convene a meeting and issue a verbal warning. If the employee does not remediate this requirement within three (3) business days of having received the verbal warning, then the employee will be relieved of any supervisory or budgetary responsibilities until such time as that the employee has successfully completed the required training and certification.

In the event that a tenured or non-tenured Actively Employed Individual with faculty rank continues to fail to complete the training and certification, the President of the relevant Institution shall remove the faculty member for cause consistent with the policy and procedures outlined in BOR policy on Discipline and Removal of Faculty Members (8.3.9.) If the faculty member is tenure-track, non-tenure, or part-time and/or adjunct and refuses to complete the training and certification, the faculty member shall also be subject to non-renewal of contract or non-reappointment.

All non-faculty Actively Employed Individual shall have a total of ten business days from the date of the verbal warning to complete the required training and certification. If the employee still fails to complete the training and certification at the end of the ten-business day period, then the employee shall receive a final written warning and will be given ten additional business days to complete the required training. If the employee continues to fail to complete the training by the regular close of business on the tenth day after the issuance of the final written warning, then their employment shall be terminated.

These reports will periodically be summarized and presented to the Board of Regents' Committee on Internal Audit, Risk, and Compliance.

Student Employees

Student employees shall be subject to the ethics training and certification requirements and associated disciplinary procedures as outlined in the "Employees" section above unless the Institution has decided to deliver an alternate ethics training and certification process. Alternative means for delivery of ethics training shall minimally include:

- The student employee's review of the USG Ethics Policy.
- A physical and/or electronic signature indicating the student employee's understanding of and compliance with the USG Ethics Policy; and,
- Periodic re-review and recertification of the USG Ethics Policy by the student employee.

Institutions that elect an alternative means to train student employees shall submit their proposed student employee ethics training and certification program to the USG Vice Chancellor for Human Resources and the USG Vice Chancellor for Organizational Effectiveness for review and approval prior to the Institution President approving an alternative delivery method.

Alternative Delivery Methods

Institutions may, with approval from the Vice Chancellor for Human Resources and the USG Office for Ethics and Compliance, choose alternative means to deliver USG Ethics Policy training and certification requirements. Alternative means for delivery of ethics training shall minimally include:

Institutions choosing an alternative means to deliver USG Ethics Policy training and certification requirements shall submit their proposed employee ethics training and certification program to the USG Vice Chancellor for Human Resources and the USG Office for Ethics and Compliance for review and approval prior to the Institution President approving an alternative delivery method.

Institution Level Training

In addition to completing USG training requirements, actively employed individuals are required to complete role specific training as established and required by their respective Institutions (i.e., role specific training).

All mandatory training required by the Institution must be approved by Institution’s Chief Human Resources Officer (“CHRO”) and the Institution’s President. No Institution training may include affirmations, ideological tests, or oaths (including diversity statements). BOR policy provides that faculty are to be hired and evaluated based on their achievement and the success of students. Additionally, individual units and departments are not permitted to mandate training for departmental employees beyond that approved by the Institution’s president and CHRO as outlined above.

Mandatory employee training should be limited to that which complies with Board of Regents (BOR), state, and federal policies, regulations, and laws.

Examples of appropriate topics for training include:

- Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.
- Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972.
- Functional training required for the performance of an individual job.
- Best practices related to an employee’s engagement and communication.
- Any requirements encompassed with this HRAP on General Criteria for Employment.

Institutions are expected to maintain training records for all employees which may include sign-in sheets, electronic attendance records, or certificates of completion. Reference HRAP on Employee Recruitment for guidance on required training to employees responsible for recruiting and hiring faculty and staff to ensure that Institutional procedures are appropriately and consistently followed.
